

Upstream and Downstream: A Shifting and Shaky Divide

1. Upstream: the other institution has authority, assets and administrative power, which they apply to the sport.

Example: all governments, UEFA

Example: the national association or national league

Example: participation in international competition by club or national association (UEFA)

Example: using international as overarching structure, funding

Example: international club

2. Downstream: the other institution has assets and apply assets used for that sport

Example: a commercialised business where the club itself rather than national association is dominant

Example: different league with a commercial club playing in a league

Example: different club, independent football and own league or cup competition

3. Upstream and Downstream: answer the following questions. Does anyone dominate?

1. Does anyone have assets that it can dominate with?
UEFA's assets are the match and a tournament

2. Does UEFA control any important resources necessary to play?
Yes, it controls the league

3. Does anyone have the assets that can dominate?
Yes, clubs have the best players

4. Does anyone have?
Yes, the national association

5. Does anyone have assets that can dominate?
There are assets a commercialised league and the UEFA, it has a monopoly on these assets

6. Does anyone have assets that can dominate, even though the governing association is based?
Yes, the national association

7. Does anyone have the assets that can dominate and control the league?
Yes, the national association
