Inclusion as Social Justice, 2020-07-13 Inclusion as Social Justice Theory and Practice in African Higher Education discusses the extent to which education enables equitable social access for diverse student populations in the context of historical sidelining of indigenous knowledge systems and epistemic injustice of colonial epistemologies in Africa The goal is to theoretically unpack the social differentials and micro inequities that practically disempower diverse students in African higher education To this end the book features aspects of diversity such as gender rurality refugee status and disability in general with hearing and visual impairment as prime illustrations It is argued that despite the ethically defensible and socially just policy and structural interventions for transforming higher education meant to redress the legacy of colonial injustices urban universities present epistemological equity challenges for students from rural communities Similarly the opaque fate of students displaced from their home countries and currently studying in universities in host countries is analyzed The book illustrates the access case for gender and disability in higher education using empirical studies and examples from Tanzania Kenya Ethiopia Zimbabwe and South Africa Challenges facing students in higher education in these countries and the strategies the students devise to succeed in the institutions are analyzed

Women in Business Families Jarna Heinonen, Kirsi Vainio-Korhonen, 2018-03-28. For centuries almost all economic activity was family based. The family business rested on the division of labor among family members. Therefore the family was both socially and economically the foundation of the family business. Families were not only production units but also education and consumption units that conveyed norms, structures, values and professional identity to next generation. Although female family members have always been active participants in family businesses, over the centuries their role has often been neglected in previous studies. Women in Business Families: From Past to Present presents both conceptual and theoretically informed empirical papers addressing three related themes relevant for family business and gender in past and in present: heroic women entrepreneurs, invisibility/visibility of women in businesses and business succession. The book Women in Business Families: From Past to Present balances between both historical and contemporary analyses. The chapters integrate the notions of time and gender in focusing on family businesses or business families in past and in present. This volume will be of vital reading to researchers and academics in the fields of Gender Studies, Family Business, Organizational studies, Entrepreneurship and the various related disciplines.

Livelihoods of Ethnic Minorities in Rural Zimbabwe Kirk Helliker, Patience Chadambuka, Joshua Matanzima, 2022-04-21. The book provides empirically rich case studies of the lives and livelihoods of marginalised ethnic minorities in colonial and post colonial Zimbabwe with a specific focus on diverse rural areas. It demonstrates the dynamic and complex relationships existing between ethnic minorities and livelihoods and analyses the ways in which projects of belonging and identity formation amongst these ethnic minorities are entangled in their respective livelihood construction projects and vice versa. The ethnic minorities include those considered indigenous to Zimbabwe and those often defined as aliens including ethnicities with a transnational presence in southern Africa. The ethnicities studied in the book include the following: Chewa, Doma, Tonga, Tshwa, San, Shangane, Basotho, Ndau, Hlengwe and Nambya. By studying their livelihoods in particular, this book offers the first full manuscript about ethnic minorities in Zimbabwe. In doing so, it highlights the significance of these ethnic minorities to Zimbabwean history, politics and society.

Islam and the Liberal State Stephen H. Jones, 2020-11-26. National identity and liberal democracy are recurrent themes in debates about Muslim minorities in the West. Britain is no exception with politicians responding to claims about Muslims' lack of integration by mandating the promotion of fundamental British values including democracy and individual liberty. This book engages with both these themes, addressing the lack of understanding about the character of British Islam and its relationship to the liberal state. It charts a gradual but decisive shift in British institutions concerned with Islamic education, Islamic law, and Muslim representation since Muslims settled in the UK in large numbers in the 1950s. Based on empirical research including interviews undertaken over a ten-year period with Muslims and analysis of public events organized by Islamic institutions, Stephen Jones challenges claims about the isolation of British Islamic organizations and shows that they have decisively shaped themselves around British public and institutional norms. He argues that this amounts to the building of a distinctive British Islam. Using this narrative, the book makes the case for a variety of liberalism that is open to the expression of religious arguments in public and to associations between religious groups and the state. It also offers a powerful challenge to claims about the insularity of British Islamic institutions by showing how the national orientation of Islam called for by British policymakers is in fact already happening.
