Historical Analysis Essay

The constitution reads that "All men are created equal", does this include women? To put it simply, no (William & Mary, n.d.). An extraordinary quantity of sex discrimination grievances and suits established the argument that protective labor laws operated as a restriction on women's employment opportunities (see "Civil Rights" in the Law Library American Women guide). The fate of the Equal Rights Amendment is far from decided. From 1972 until 2020 thirty-seven states have ratified the ERA. The reality is, that regardless of the great achievements of women over the years, under the constitution women and men do not have the same rights. The ERA must be ratified in order for women to officially have the same rights and benefits as men. Although the Equal Rights Amendment process has advanced, the amendment needed has not made its official way as part of the constitution. Representative Barbara Jordan made a statement back in 1979 requesting an extension for the ratification deadline ( <https://dp.la/primary-source-sets/the-equal-rights-amendment/sources/1206>). Ms. Jordan's statement is an example of the importance of equal rights. The representative argues that is no "contemporaneous census" on the ERA issues. When this statement was made, it had already taken 50 years for the equal rights progress to have come as far as it had. While analyzing history, we must not ignore that we cannot trust our national legislators to do comprehensive work without the ERA being ratified. In other words, the Supreme Court practices the Constitution in its understanding of biased law,

Corpus Linguistics and Textual

History Percy van Keulen, Willem Th. van Peursen, 2018-07-17 Over the years the use of computers for research has become increasingly important in Biblical Studies. However, a combination of computational linguistics with diachronic text critical and text historical approaches has hardly ever taken place. Quite often there is mutual misunderstanding between computational linguistics and more traditional approaches in the field of linguistics and textual analysis. For example, in computer assisted research of modern text corpora it is common to treat the text as an unequivocal and unidimensional sequence of characters. In Biblical Studies however either text is considered an abstraction, the result of a scholarly reconstruction based on the extant textual witnesses. Here a fundamental difference in approach reveals itself. The present volume tries to overcome the misunderstanding between the various disciplines and to establish how a fruitful interaction of information technology, linguistics and textual criticism can contribute to the analysis of ancient texts. It addresses questions concerning the confrontation between synchronic and diachronic approaches, the role of linguistic analysis in the interpretation of texts and the interaction of linguistic theory and the analysis of linguistic data. The first section of this volume contains the papers presented at the CALAP seminar 2003. In the second section different aspects of the interdisciplinary analysis are applied to a selected passage from the Peshitta of Kings.
