

how to fix a paper jam

Turn off and unplug the printer

This keeps you safe and protects the printer against mechanical damage.

Start by canceling any print jobs that are in progress, then turn off and unplug the machine.

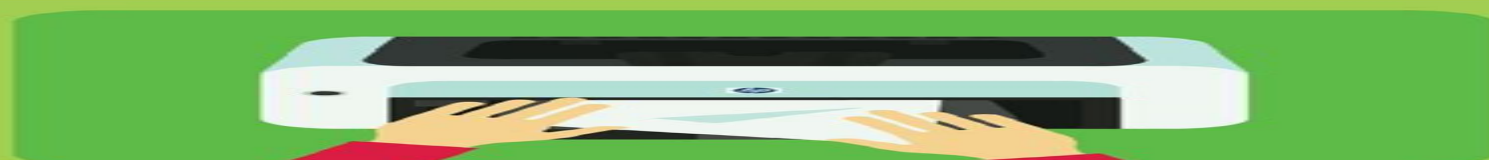

If you use a laser printer, let it cool down for 30 minutes before moving on.

Remove all paper from the tray and then reload it

Remove any paper from the tray so you can see clearly.

If paper is stuck, slowly and gently pull it out one sheet at a time, starting in the middle of the stack. Check for any and large sheets, check for small bits of paper.

Carefully re-stack the remaining paper and load it back into the tray. Push the tray into its slot so the paper feeds properly into the machine.

Open the rear access door or duplexer

This allows you to remove jammed paper from the rollers with less risk of damaging the printer.

Pull the paper slowly and gently to avoid tears and remove any smaller bits of paper left behind.

If the rollers look dirty, gently clean them with a soft, moist towel.

If you can't remove all the jammed paper from the rear, you may need to gently remove it from the front.

Check to see if the rollers turn freely. If they don't, you may need to replace them. (Do not try to force the rollers to move, which can damage the printer.)

Close the doors and plug in the printer

Close the doors firmly.

Turn the printer back on and hold the "Resume" button until the machine starts back up.
