

Hair as Evidence

Hair is a common form of evidence in many criminal cases. It can link a suspect to the scene of a crime, it can show contact with a victim, and it can also serve to identify clothing or shoes abandoned by a suspect. Hair is a valuable tool because it can last much longer than many other types of evidence. It is also shed in fairly large amounts which often go unnoticed by people committing crimes.

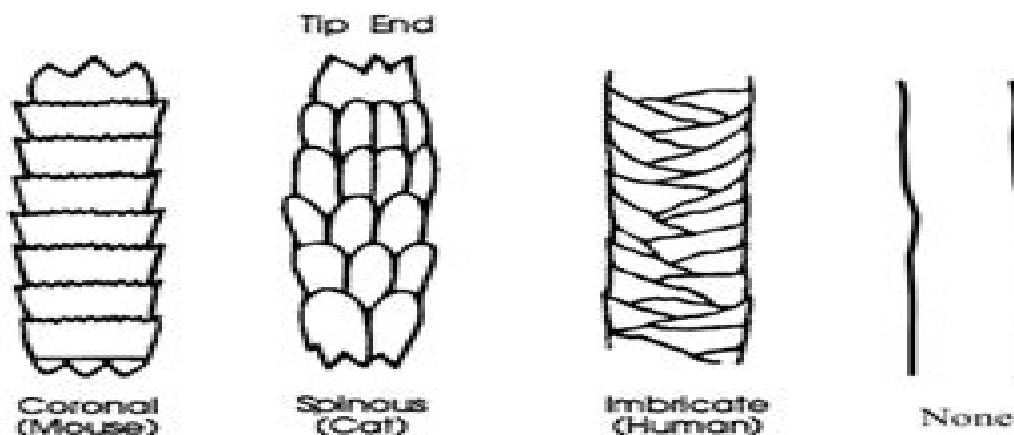

Hair can be difficult to identify. Hair from different parts of the body exhibits a fairly wide range of characteristics. Usually a dozen hairs taken from different parts of a suspect's body are used for comparison.

Hair when seen under the microscope is composed of three parts – the cuticle, medulla and cortex. If you compare the hair to a pencil, the cuticle would be the paint on the outside, the cortex would be the wood, and the medulla would be the lead running down the center.

We are going to work with three factors used to identify hairs- scale pattern, medulla patterns, and medullary index.

Scale Patterns

Make a wet mount of a hair using glycerine and observe under the microscope. Observe the outside of the hair under 100X and 400X. By carefully adjusting the lamp and diaphragm you should be able to see one of the scale patterns shown below. Record the type of scale pattern on the data table.
