

PHYSICS 2000: LENSES, REFLECTIONS AND REFRACTIONS AND THE SPEED OF LIGHT

CONCEPTS

The study of reflection of light on flat and curved surfaces, and refraction of light through different media, will be first two small steps of a course long.

EQUIPMENT

PHET simulation: Shedding light: convex and concave mirrors and lenses

PHET simulation: Geometric Optics

For flat, curved mirrors and lenses, geometric optics, understanding of:
convex/concave mirrors, lenses

How incident light to the parallel lines by entering and exiting lenses. Also, the refraction of light. (This subject: Shedding light, Geometric Optics simulation)

TO DO

Light can be considered as a beam, or ray, that travels in straight lines if the size of wavelength (propagation) is less than the wavelength of light. Light rays travel in straight lines unless they are scattered by a different medium, point of it is not light itself but the wave motion (oscillation) for the light. The light ray is the wave motion in the propagation part of the light with some small distance, and the direction of change. This process is called as the wave, oscillation of reflection follows the law of reflection.

Law of Reflection is also in Figure 1, showing that angles of light incident and reflected are equal, the angle of incidence, θ_i , is equal to the angle of reflection, θ_r . Both angles are measured from the normal, the perpendicular line through the surface. This is true for flat as well as curved surfaces. Curved surfaces which have different radii of curvature, which have different radii of curvature. If the curvature is negative, or convex, then the reflected ray will have a larger angle of incidence (more than 90 degrees) or larger angle of reflection (more than 90 degrees).

(In all figures, the red line shows light rays, the dashed line shows the normal.)
