Measuring the Sugar

The total sugar content of the cuvee must be very carefully controlled. If the sugar content is too low, the finished wine will not have enough effervescence. However, if the sugar content is too high, excessive pressures will be generated in the bottle, and high pressures can cause the bottles to explode. When commercial sparkling wines are made, enough sugar is added to produce bottle pressures of about 90 pounds per square inch (psi). However, home winemakers are strongly advised to work with less pressure. Exploding bottles are the subject of jokes, but they can be very serious hazards.

One and one-half (1.5) ounces of sugar for each gallon of completely dry wine is recommended. This quantity of sugar will produce a lively sparkle in the finished wine, and bottle pressures will be held to about 40 psi. Ordinary white, granulated household sugar should be used. The starting wine must be completely dry, and the residue sugar should be measured with a Cûnitest tablet. The quantity of sugar must be 122 accurately weighed, and the volume of the cuvee accurately measured. Do not guess at any of these quantities. The carefully measured sugar and a small amount of yeast nutrient should be added to the wine. About 1/4 tsp. of diammonium phosphate in 5 gallons of wine is the right amount. Stir the cuvee until all of the sugar and DAP are dissolved.
