Michael R. Abraham, Michael J. Pavelich, 1999-05-20 The laboratory course should do more than just acquaint the students with fundamental techniques and procedures The laboratory experience should also involve the students in some of the kinds of mental activities a research scientist employs finding patterns in data developing mathematical analyses for them forming hypotheses testing hypotheses debating with colleagues and designing experiments to prove a point For this reason the student tested lab activities in Inquiries into Chemistry 3 E have been designed so that students can practice these mental activities while building knowledge of the specific subject area Instructors will enjoy the flexibility this text affords They can select from a comprehensive collection of structured guided inquiry experiments and a corresponding collection of open inquiry experiments depending on their perception as to what would be the most appropriate method of instruction for their students Both approaches were developed to encourage students to think logically and independently to refine their mental models and to allow students to have an experience that more closely reflects what occurs in actual scientific research Thoroughly illustrated appendices cover safety in the lab common equipment and procedures The United States

processor to allow for repeat editing and corrections The research notebook has all graph pages a title section and a place for the students and their assistants to sign and witness that exercise The basic mechanics of the lab report title purpose procedure diagrams data table math and calculations observations and graphs are handwritten into the book The conclusion is done on a word processor MS Word which allows the instructor to guide the student in writing and editing a complete essay using the MLA format When the final copy is completed the essay is printed and inserted into the lab notebook for grading At the end of the term the student has all their labs in one place for future reference These lab notebooks can be obtained for as little as 3 00 per book This is money well spent In our district the Board of Education buys the books for each student The BOE sees these books as expendable but necessary materials for all science and engineering instruction
