Resource Selection by Animals B.F. Manly, L. McDonald, D.L.

Thomas, Trent L. McDonald, Wallace P. Erickson, 2007-05-08 We have written this book as a guide to the design and analysis of field studies of resource selection concentrating primarily on statistical aspects of the comparison of the use and availability of resources of different types Our intended audience is field ecologists in general and in particular wildlife and fisheries biologists who are attempting to measure the extent to which real animal populations are selective in their choice of food and habitat As such we have made no attempt to address those aspects of theoretical ecology that are concerned with how animals might choose their resources if they acted in an optimal manner The book is based on the concept of a resource selection function RSF where this is a function of characteristics measured on resource units such that its value for a unit is proportional to the probability of that unit being used We argue that this concept leads to a unified theory for the analysis and interpretation of data on resource selection and can replace many ad hoc statistical methods that have been used in the past

Methodological Issues in Management Research Rabi N. sampling interviews focus groups case study research and mixed method research Advances in Metabolic Mapping Techniques for Brain Imaging of Behavioral and Learning Functions Francisco Gonzalez-Lima, Th.

Finkenstädt, Henning Scheich, 2012-12-06 In recent years revolutionary technical advances have permitted neuroscientists to map the functioning of the brain in exquisite detail Of interest are the new techniques that visually display cell energy metabolism which is coupled to functional brain activity in behaving animals This is the first book dealing with the application of 2 deoxyglucose and related metabolic mapping techniques for brain imaging of behavioral and learning functions Quantitative autoradiographic techniques based on the use of exogenous markers include radiolabeled glucose and its analogs especially 2 deoxyglucose and fluorodeoxyglucose Other mapping techniques are based on the histochemical staining of endogenous metabolic markers such as cytochrome oxidase as well as immunohistochemistry for expression of c fos genes In spite of the great potential capabilities of the new imaging techniques relatively few neuroscientists are using this approach to study brain functions related to behavior There is a need to review state of the art applications of these methods in behavioral neuroscience and to formulate recommendations for future research in this area This book is intended to fulfill these needs by bringing together leading neuroscientists using metabolic mapping approaches to elucidate brain mechanisms of behavior Discussions are not limited to one animal species but they cover a broad range of vertebrates with unique behavioral capabilities

Invasive Plants and Forest Ecosystems Ravinder Kumar Kohli, Shibu Jose, Harminder Pal Singh, Daizy Rani Batish, 2008-09-09 As the worldwide human population explodes and trade becomes increasingly globalized the transboundary movement of plant species from their place of origin to foreign regions is escalating and expected to experience continued growth in the coming decades Invasive non native species pose one of the greatest challenges for natural resource managers who are charged with the maintenance of biological diversity and the sustainable production of forest resources With international contributors presenting an informed and integrated approach to the control of havoc wrecking species Invasive Plants and Forest Ecosystems provides the most updated information on invading plants their impacts on forest ecosystems and control strategies This text addresses such important issues as the socioeconomic and policy aspects of plant invasion and offers complete coverage of their ecological impacts and the varied levels of threats in diverse situations
