The Eye and Vision: Anatomy

1. Anatomically, the eye is a spherical organ that is approximately 2.5 cm in diameter. It is composed of several layers, including the cornea, sclera, iris, ciliary muscles, lens, vitreous body, and retina.

Cornea: transparent, curved front part of the eye

Sclera: white, tough outer layer

Iris: colored part of the eye

Ciliary muscles: muscles that control the shape of the lens

2. The cornea is responsible for approximately 70% of the eye's refractive power.

Refractive power: the ability of the eye to focus light on the retina

3. The lens is the primary refractive element of the eye. It is a biconvex structure that can change its shape to focus light on the retina.

4. The ciliary muscles are responsible for controlling the shape of the lens. They contract to increase the curvature of the lens, which increases its refractive power.

Vitreous body: a clear, gel-like substance that fills the interior of the eye

5. The retina is the light-sensitive layer at the back of the eye. It contains photoreceptors (rods and cones) that convert light into electrical signals.

Rods: responsible for vision in low light conditions

Cones: responsible for color vision and high spatial frequency

Optic nerve: carries visual information from the retina to the brain

Optic chiasm: the point where the optic nerves meet

Optic tract: carries visual information from the optic chiasm to the brain

Visual cortex: the part of the brain that processes visual information

Visual pathway: the path that light takes from the eye to the brain

Visual processing: the brain's ability to interpret visual information

Visual perception: the brain's ability to understand what is seen
