The Human-Animal Boundary Nandita Batra, Mario Wenning, 2018-11-27 Throughout the centuries philosophers and poets alike have defended an essential difference rather than a porous transition between the human and animal Attempts to assign essential properties to humans e g language reason or morality often reflected ulterior aims to defend a privileged position for humans This book shifts the traditional anthropocentric focus of philosophy and literature by combining the questions What is human and What is animal What makes this collection unique is that it fills a lacuna in critical animal studies and the growing field of ecocriticism It is the first collection that establishes a productive encounter between philosophical perspectives on the human animal boundary and those that draw on fictional literature The objective is to establish a dialogue between those disciplines with the goal of expanding the imaginative scope of human animal relationships The contributions thus do not only trace and deconstruct the boundaries dividing humans and nonhuman animals they also present the reader with alternative perspectives on the porous continuum and surprising reversal of what appears as human and what as nonhuman

So Much Stuff Chip Colwell, 2023-11-06 To be human means to need things Even more human is to need more and more of them In this engaging charming book archaeologist curator and writer Chip Colwell takes us around the world covering topics as wide ranging as the dawn of tool making the earliest cave paintings the complexities of clothing the Industrial Revolution the torrent of gizmos invented to bring us closer and supposedly make our lives easier and finally the mountains of unwanted stuff in dumps Along the way he raises questions such as Why is a treasured keepsake sacred to one person but meaningless to another What do we go through when we clean out the belongings of the dearly departed And what is the point of storing things in museums The book is organized around three historical phases 1 the invention of tools 2 the dawn of the belief that things mean something beyond their immediate use around 50 000 years ago and 3 the Industrial Revolution and the age of mass consumption Colwell takes us on a tour across millions of years to explain how humans have arrived at this moment a world that both requires things and is suffering because of them Play Among Books Miro Roman,Alice_ch3n81,2021-12-06 How does coding change the way we think about architecture This question opens up an important research perspective In this book Miro Roman and his AI Alice_ch3n81 develop a playful scenario in which they propose coding as the new literacy of information They convey knowledge in the form of a project model that links the fields of architecture and information through two interwoven narrative strands in an infinite flow of real books Focusing on the intersection of information technology and architectural formulation the authors create an evolving intellectual reflection on digital architecture and computer science was given a second look as Euro American primatologists began to debate amongst themselves the question of whether Homo sapiens is the only cultural animal In the most recent chapter of this controversy field researchers such as the Swiss primatologist Christophe Boesch have accused experimental psychologists such as Michael Tomasello of underestimating and even denying the capacity of chimpanzees for culture because they limit their studies to captive animals brought up under cognitively debilitating conditions and tested in laboratory settings bound to favor human test subjects with whom the animals are compared These controversies raise serious questions about what sort of laboratory culture is best for the study of primate cognition
