Perspectives on Contemporary Statistics David Caster Hoaglin, David S. Moore, 1992. This book is a must for anyone who teaches statistics, particularly those who teach beginning statistics, mathematicians, social scientists, engineers as well as graduate students and others new to the field. The authors focus on topics central to the teaching of statistics for beginners and other expositions that are guided by the current state of statistical research and practice. Statistical practice has changed radically during the past generation under the impact of ever cheaper and more accessible computing power. Beginning instruction has lagged behind the evolution of the field. Software now enables students to shortcut unpleasant calculations but this is only the most obvious consequences of changing statistical practice. The content and emphases of statistics instruction still needs much rethinking. This volume assembles nine new essays on important topics in present day statistics at the college with various levels of mathematics preparation and from diverse disciplinary backgrounds Accordingly the chapters present modern perspectives on central aspects of statistics and emphasize the conceptual content that should accompany all varieties of beginning instruction The books opens with a contemporary overview of statistics as the science of data a view much broader than the inference from data emphasized by much traditional teaching The next two chapters discuss the philosophy and some of the tools used in data analysis and describe the impact of computing on data analysis and inference and its implication for teaching The book concludes with introductions to diagnostics and to the alternative approach embodied in resistant and robust procedures from back cover

The Teaching and Learning of Mathematics at University Level Derek Holton, 2006-04-11 This book is the final report of the ICMI study on the Teaching and Learning of Mathematics at University Level As such it is one of a number of such studies that ICMI has commissioned The other Study Volumes cover assessment in mathematics education gender equity research in mathematics education the teaching of geometry and history in mathematics education All of these Study Volumes represent a statement of the state of the art in their respective areas We hope that this is also the case for the current Study Volume The current study on university level mathematics was commissioned for essentially four reasons First universities world wide are accepting a much larger and more diverse group of students than has been the case Consequently universities have begun to adopt a role more like that of the school system and less like the elite institutions of the past As a result the educational and pedagogical issues facing universities have changed Second although university student numbers have increased significantly there has not been a corresponding increase in the number of mathematics majors Hence mathematics departments have to be more aware of their students' needs in order to retain the students they have and to attract future students As part of this awareness departments of mathematics have to take the teaching and learning of mathematics more seriously than perhaps they have in the past
