

3. Macbeth murders Duncan because he wants the throne. Next he murders the guards to cover his tracks. Then he murders Banquo to remove someone whom he considers a threat. How is the murder of Macduff's family different from Macbeth's previous crimes? What does this incident tell about his character?

4. At the beginning of Scene 11 Shakespeare employs both foreshadowing and irony. While speaking in general of the bloodshed at home, Malcolm and Macduff do not realize that they are discussing a generality which is actually painfully specific. Their discussion of the state of affairs in Scotland foreshadows Macduff's personal grief only minutes before he is to learn of his family's massacre. Irony is present in Malcolm's suspicion that Macduff might be Macbeth's spy, since Macduff dared to leave his wife and children behind in Macbeth's kingdom. However, since the family has already been slaughtered (unknown to these two men), this suspicion has a powerfully emotional and ironic impact. As a trick, to probe the depths of Macduff's sincerity, and loyalty Malcolm accuses himself of various unkingly vices, some of which Macduff can accept as human. However, when Malcolm says he should probably bring disaster to the land, Macduff then agrees with Malcolm and says he is not fit to rule. It is then that Malcolm realizes Macduff's sincerity is unfeigned and that he is a man to be trusted. Relieved, Malcolm can now lower his guard, and he tells Macduff he was testing him. What does this elaborate ruse tell the audience about the state of affairs in Scotland?

5. Why do the men discuss the king of England? (These comments have little to do with the play.) What does this tell us about Shakespeare?

6. What news does Ross bring? Explain the hunting imagery and metaphor he uses when imparting this information.
