This volume describes General Electric Corporation s venture into developing second and third generation mainframe electrical appliances and industrial machines It was also a founder of the Radio Corporation of America which eventually became one of its competitors and developed many electrical systems in order to control different types of industrial machines Its breakthrough into computing came with its winning bid to provide the computing systems for the Electronic Recording Method of Accounting system developed for the Bank of America by the Stanford Research Institute The success of this project led GE to develop the GE 200 series which was the foundation for commercial timesharing The GE 235 was

GE will be remembered for many innovations which continue to be used in modern computing systems Catalogue
