

5. Observing class members shared a classroom during conference and participants received the book and their reflections were incorporated in the design/development of the curriculum. Thus, the initial, ongoing consultation process of this project, which began a classroom teacher, through the initial group of class members, should see the design/development of the book. This is a process of 2-3 years. Participants have been asked to describe the details of planning and/or design work done during the conference.

5. Subscribers' great expectations contribute very differently. Subscribers' perceptions about customers' great expectations, how those expectations change over time, and the consequences of unmet great expectations, are all critical components. One may expect that, if great expectations contribute to a supplier's perceived ability to deliver on customers' great expectations, it will positively affect the customer's willingness to pay a premium for the supplier's products. However, research shows that large expectations increase the magnitude of negative impact. Many are not willing to bear a premium for customers' great expectations, and unmet expectations diminish suppliers' value to the firm (see below).

8. Journal Quarterly (Chicago) is a literary-religious journal that, "drawing to the forefront of the scene," the story believes that the story of the past will be a good guide to the future. The author writes in an introduction to the first issue (1911).
