Figure 4.4 shows all the data as on the top. The figure itself offers something more interesting: profiles. Clicking on the names of the major league teams (see Table 4.4) takes you to a page with a graph. It provides information on the number of runs scored, hits allowed, and errors committed over the season (2010). To see the history, the current statistics, and other statistics from other clubs for the same season, click on the team name. The 2010 season is easy to find. Right-click on the column, 2010, and click Copy. With Excel, simply making a copy is allowed. Other interesting statistics from 2010 include: average runs scored per team (about 4.5), average runs allowed per team (about 4.5), and average errors per team (about 0.5). The 2010 season is the only season where the average runs scored is the same as the average runs allowed. It is interesting to see that the average errors per team is about 0.5.
