Finson,Jon Pedersen,2015-03-01 This book examines visual data use with students PK 16 as well as in pre service in service science teacher preparation Each chapter includes discussion about the current state of the art with respect to science classroom application and utilization of the particular visual data targeted by the author s discussion and explanation about the targeted visual data as applied by the author in his her classroom use of visual data as a diagnostic tool its use as an assessment tool and discussion of implications for science teaching and or science teacher preparation Although the body of research and practice in this field is growing there remains a gap in the literature about clearly explicating the use of visual data in the science classroom A growing body of literature discusses what visual data are although this topic is still viewed as being at the beginning of its development in educators thinking and there are some scattered examples of studies exploring the use of visual data in science classrooms although those studies have not necessarily clearly identified their foci as visual data per se As interest and attention has become more focused on visual data a logical progression of questioning has been how visual data are actually applied in the science classroom whether it be early elementary college or somewhere in between Visual data applications of interest to the science education community include how it is identified how it can be used with students and how students can generate it themselves how it can be employed as a diagnostic tool in concept development and how it can be utilized as an assessment tool This book explores that as well as a variety of pragmatic ways to help science educators more effectively utilize visual data and representations in their instruction

Disputes and Challenges of Immune Checkpoint Inhibitors in Gastrointestinal Cancers Hongwei Yao,Wen G. Jiang,Zhi-Chun Gu,Lin Zhao,Zhengyang Yang,2024-05-15 Recently immune checkpoint inhibitors ICIs have received a lot of attention to treat gastrointestinal cancers Compared with traditional treatments immunotherapy can kill cancer cells by activating the antitumor immunity the specific recognition of cancer antigens preventing normal cells from being attacked However the application of ICIs is accompanied by a series of specific toxic reactions caused by the functional stimulation of the immune system which are called immune related adverse events irAEs Early identification and timely intervention to handle irAEs are usually required to maximize the therapeutic effect of ICIs In addition related surgical complications after neoadjuvant immunotherapy is increasingly reported Thus although immunotherapy has shown obvious advantages in the clinical treatment of gastrointestinal cancers the safety and potential risks of such treatment have to be considered Many clinical studies have shown that cancer patients receiving neoadjuvant immunotherapy experience different degrees of immune inflammatory reaction immune disorders immune related pneumonia and other adverse events In addition some patients suffering from irAEs during the treatment have to face a delayed operation or even lose the opportunity to be operated Finally because the clinical imaging manifestations of immunotherapy are complex and diverse the imaging evaluation criteria have so far not been standardized The aim of this Research Topic is to report disputes and challenges of immune checkpoint inhibitors in gastrointestinal cancers We welcome original research articles Review articles Mini Reviews and Case reports Preferred topics include but are not limited to the following Timely discovery of immune related adverse events during immunotherapy Identification and differentiation between immune related adverse events and adverse drug events Treatment and drug withdrawal timing upon immune related adverse events Management of related surgical complications after neoadjuvant immunotherapy Imaging evaluation criteria or methods of immunotherapy efficacy

National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Health and Medicine Division, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on Law and Justice, Board on Children, Youth, and Families, Committee on the Biological and Psychosocial Effects of Peer Victimization: Lessons for Bullying Prevention, 2016-10-14 Bullying has long been tolerated as a rite of passage among children and adolescents There is an implication that individuals who are bullied must have asked for this type of treatment or deserved it Sometimes even the child who is bullied begins to internalize this idea For many years there has been a general acceptance and collective shrug when it comes to a child or adolescent with greater social capital or power pushing around a child perceived as subordinate But bullying is not developmentally appropriate it should not be considered a normal part of the typical social grouping that occurs throughout a child's life Although bullying behavior endures through generations the milieu is changing Historically bullying has occurred at school the physical setting in which most of childhood is centered and the primary source for peer group formation In recent years however the physical setting is not the only place bullying is occurring Technology allows for an entirely new type of digital electronic aggression cyberbullying which takes place through chat rooms instant messaging social media and other forms of digital electronic communication Composition of peer groups shifting demographics changing societal norms and modern technology are contextual factors that must be considered to understand and effectively react to bullying in the United States Youth are embedded in multiple contexts and each of these contexts interacts with individual characteristics of youth in ways that either exacerbate or attenuate the association between these individual characteristics and bullying perpetration or victimization Recognizing that bullying behavior is a major public health problem that demands the concerted and coordinated time and attention of parents educators and school administrators health care providers policy makers families and others concerned with the care of children this report evaluates the state of the science on biological and psychosocial consequences of peer victimization and the risk and protective factors that either increase or decrease peer victimization
