_____

To avoid the possibility of personal injury and/or property damage, it is important that safe working practices be observed. The following are accepted, but not limited, examples of such practices:

Before entering a meeting, an attendee should assess your own level of involvement and, if you cannot help it, if you are indeed late. These criteria will be the proper disposition of any early arrival (Aronson, 1994). This assessment can assist in setting ground rules in advance to define the roles of the attendees. Ground rules are not to be used to prevent competing contributions. It is extremely important that the current techniques evaluation of early grounds provide for completion of service. Failure to do so will create a potential negative ground.

- Must be returned to the ground to service, except that:
  - All access connections are subject to service
  - All electrical leads are properly dressed and secured away from sharp edges
  - High-voltage components, and heating parts
  - For constructed electrical terminals, connections, feeders, etc., are adequately spaced away from all other parts and wires
  - All safety grounds, both internal and external are correctly and securely maintained

CONCLUSIONS

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 40 sedentary, middle-aged women who were randomly assigned to either a supervised walking program or a control group. The walking program consisted of 12 weeks of supervised walking, 3 times per week, for 30 minutes per session. The control group consisted of 20 women who did not participate in the walking program. The subjects were assessed at baseline and at 12 weeks for physical and psychological health. The physical health assessment included measurements of body mass index (BMI), waist circumference, and blood pressure. The psychological health assessment included measurements of self-esteem, anxiety, and depression. The results of the study showed that the walking program had a significant positive effect on the physical and psychological health of the subjects. The walking program resulted in a significant decrease in BMI, waist circumference, and blood pressure. The walking program also resulted in a significant increase in self-esteem and a significant decrease in anxiety and depression. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program can improve the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.
