Rapport d'information sur les dix ans de la convention UNESCO de 2005 sur la protection et la promotion de la diversité des expressions culturelles Patrick Bloche, commission des affaires culturelles, 2015-06-24 Depuis l'adoption en 2005 de la Convention de l'UNESCO sur la protection et la promotion de la diversité des expressions culturelles, notre monde a évolué en profondeur, bouleversé par l'explosion des technologies numériques et leur irruption dans tous les domaines de la vie humaine, dont bien entendu la culture et la création. Consciente par ses promoteurs, dont la France, le Québec, l'Organisation internationale de la Francophonie, comme un instrument original, dynamique et constructif, la disposition des États pour légitimer leurs politiques culturelles et préserver leurs produits et services culturels de la marchandisation outrancière, elle est aujourd'hui une des conventions internationales les plus ratifiées au monde. À l'heure de son dixième anniversaire, le rapport tend à montrer que la Convention UNESCO de 2005, grâce à sa neutralité technologique et son insertion dans l'ordre juridique international et européen, est plus utile que jamais. Elle constitue un outil particulièrement légitime et efficace pour protéger et promouvoir la diversité des expressions culturelles face aux nouvelles pratiques économiques et sociales, l'œuvre dans notre environnement globalisé et faire du monde numérique qui est désormais le nôtre un espace où chacun de façon libre et claire pourra plus aisément aller à la rencontre de la culture de l'autre.
