Pirouettes and Passions Mia Nadasi, Myrtil Nádasi, 2007 Pirouettes and Passions Growing up behind the Curtain By Mia Nadasi This memoir is for readers interested in ballet and theatre and life of the privileged artists behind the ex Iron Curtain It fills a gap about a period and Hungary's artistic life not much written about in English My parents were both ballet dancers my father rose to be the Artistic Director of the Hungarian State Ballet Company I followed their footsteps and became a dancer and an actress The journey of our family which starts in the 19th century is typically European as it encompasses locations of several countries Germany France Russia Switzerland even South America and of course mainly Hungary The history of their families could not have been more different My father was an illegitimate child and had to overcome a poverty stricken childhood to become a much awarded leading artist of his day regarded today as one of the founding fathers of classical ballet in Hungary He personally encountered great names in the ballet world took classes with Cecchetti where his fellow dancers included Nijinsky and Karsavina and watched Fokine creating his ballets My mother hailed from a wealthy bourgeois family of French German extraction yet the two of them ended up dancing together all over Europe before settling in Hungary Having established their ballet studio in Budapest they became well known and successful members of the glittering pre war Budapest society I was born during the war and after the communist take over life has changed fundamentally Initially my parents were regarded as capitalists but soon their expertise was recognised and like so many other artists they became privileged within the constraints of the regime From an early age I was groomed to become an artist I describe my years as a ballet student in the State Ballet Institute based on the system of the Russian school As a child I started acting at one of the most distinguished theatre companies Vigszinhaz and later I joined as the youngest ever member At the same time I made my debut in a successful film as a result I became one of the well known faces in the country When I graduated from the State Ballet Institute my partner was Ivan Nagy However I turned my back on ballet and decided to become an actress In the nineteen fifties and sixties I got to know the most important players in the ballet theatre and film world During that period I grew up and matured both as a performer and a young woman My sentimental education crushes romances and heartbreaks were all informed by that milieu I was a schoolgirl during the 1956 uprising and experienced the so called soft dictatorship that followed However my perspective is always personal the great historical events only feature as much as they touched my life There is more emphasis on everyday life and the small human dramas that shaped my fate and those of my friends It was also fate that made me to give up my homeland and take a flight to England

The Oxford Handbook of Contemporary Ballet Kathrina Farrugia-Kriel, Jill Nunes Jensen, 2020-09-01 In distinction to many extant histories of ballet The Oxford Handbook of Contemporary Ballet prioritizes connections between ballet communities as it interweaves chapters by scholars critics choreographers and working professional dancers The book looks at the many ways ballet functions as a global practice in the 21st century providing new perspectives on ballet's past present and future As an effort to dismantle the linearity of academic canons the fifty three chapters within provide multiple entry points for readers to engage in balletic discourse With an emphasis on composition and process alongside dances created and the assertion that contemporary ballet is a definitive era the book carves out space for critical inquiry Many of the chapters consider whether or not ballet can reconcile its past and actually become present while others see ballet as flexible and willing to be remolded at the hands of those with tools to do so

Geographies of Dance Adam M. Pine, Olaf Kuhlke, 2013-12-24 This volume provides a theoretical and practical examination of the relationships between bodies dance and space Using ten case studies it illustrates the symbolic power of dance that is crafted by choreographers and acted out by dancers The book portrays a multitude of ways in which public and private spaces stages buildings town squares as well as natural environments are transformed and made meaningful by dance Furthermore it explores the meaning of dance as emotionally experienced by dancers and examines how movement in certain spaces creates meaning without the use of words or symbols
