

The United States is a country of many different people and cultures. This diversity is one of our strengths. It is important to understand the history of each group and how they have contributed to the nation. The following sections provide a brief overview of the major ethnic groups in the United States.

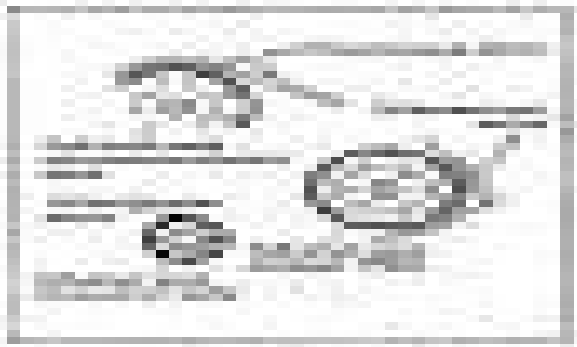

Figure 10.1: Distribution of Major Ethnic Groups in the United States. This map shows the estimated percentage of the population for each major ethnic group across the United States. The map is color-coded: white for the majority, with various shades of gray and black representing different ethnicities. The distribution shows a high concentration of white people in the Northeast and Midwest, and a higher concentration of Black people in the South and parts of the Midwest. Other groups are more sparsely distributed across the country.
