narratives intertwine in The Chenango Kid One is the personal story of the author Roger Miller who grew up on Chenango Street a main artery of the medium sized industrial city of Binghamton New York in the 1950s The second is the larger story of the 1950s Each narrative enlarges upon the other Many elements make up the personal a devastating house fire a single mother who liked to work and to frequent taverns a father mystified by life less devoted to work than to benignly stalking his son a half sister long unknown a drunken and or crazy uncle or two a boyhood paradise in the hills of Pennsylvania and a passion for reading and art All in all an unconventionally conventional working class youth The Chenango Kid also connects Chenango Street to the wider world of the Fifties a vibrant explosive decade in art literature music movies and television making it The Decade That Never Ends The popular culture of no other ten year span in the century continues to exert its influence as strongly or to be revived as often as that of the 1950s      Doing History Linda S. Levstik, Keith C.

Barton, 2015-01-30 Now in its fifth edition Doing History offers a unique perspective on teaching and learning history in the elementary and middle grades Through case studies of teachers and students in diverse classrooms and from diverse backgrounds it shows children engaging in authentic historical investigations often in the context of an integrated social studies curriculum The premise is that children can engage in valid forms of historical inquiry collecting and analyzing data examining the perspectives of people in the past considering multiple interpretations and creating evidence based historical accounts Grounded in contemporary sociocultural theory and research the text features vignettes in each chapter showing communities of teachers and students doing history in environments rich in literature art writing discussion and debate The authors explain how the teaching demonstrated in the vignettes reflects basic principles of contemporary learning theory Doing History emphasizes diversity of perspectives in two ways readers encounter students from a variety of backgrounds and students themselves look at history from multiple perspectives It provides clear guidance in using multiple forms of assessment to evaluate the specifically historical aspects of children s learning
