

Definition: A triangle is a polygon with three sides and three angles. The sum of the interior angles of a triangle is always 180° . A triangle is classified based on its side lengths and angle measures.

Types of Triangles

Triangles can be classified based on their side lengths and angle measures. The following table summarizes the classification:

Equilateral Triangle: All three sides are equal, and all three angles are equal (60° each).

Isosceles Triangle: Two sides are equal, and the angles opposite these sides are also equal.

Scalene Triangle: All three sides are of different lengths, and all three angles are of different measures.

Right-Angled Triangle

A right-angled triangle is a triangle with one angle that is a right angle (90°). The side opposite the right angle is called the hypotenuse, and the other two sides are called the base and the perpendicular.

The Pythagorean Theorem states that in a right-angled triangle, the square of the hypotenuse is equal to the sum of the squares of the other two sides.
