Abstract: This study examined the effects of a 12-week group-based dance fitness intervention on cardiovascular fitness, body composition, and quality of life in sedentary, middle-aged women. The intervention was designed to be enjoyable and accessible to a wide range of women. Results showed significant improvements in cardiovascular fitness, body composition, and quality of life. The findings suggest that a group-based dance fitness intervention can be an effective and enjoyable way for sedentary women to improve their health and well-being.
