Manual Faster Than Automatic:

Automated Taxon Identification in Systematics Norman MacLeod, 2007-07-23 The automated identification of biological objects or groups has been a dream among taxonomists and systematists for centuries. However, progress in designing and implementing practical systems for fully automated taxon identification has been frustratingly slow. Regardless, the dream has never died. Recent developments in computer architectures and

Robinson, 2010-02-05 Crime Scene Photography Second Edition offers an introduction to the basic concepts of forensic picture taking. The forensic photographer, or more specifically the crime scene photographer, must know how to create an acceptable image that is capable of withstanding challenges in court. The photographic theory and principles have to be well grounded in the physics of optics; the how-to recommendations have to work, and the end result must be admissible in court. Based on the author's years of experience in the field at both the Arlington County and Baltimore County Police Departments, this book blends the practical functions of crime scene processing with theories of photography to guide the student in acquiring the skills, knowledge, and ability to render reliable evidence. This text has been carefully constructed for ease of use and effectiveness in training and was class tested by the author at George Washington University. Beginning August 2008, this book will be required reading by the IAI Crime Scene Certification Board for all levels of certification through August 2011. Over 600 full-color photographs. Two new chapters on The History of Forensic Photography and Digital Image Processing of Evidentiary Photography. An essential reference for crime scene photography, including topics such as Composition the Inverse Square Law Court Cases affecting photography Digital Image Processing and Photogrammetry Required reading by the Crime Scene Certification Board of the International Association for Identification IAI for all levels of certification
