- THE 2008 BUDGET will have a significant impact on the way in which the Government will be able to fund the NHS. The Government has announced that it will be introducing a new health tax, which will be levied on the top 10% of earners. This will be a significant source of revenue for the NHS, and will help to fund the new health services that will be introduced in the coming years.

- Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 40 sedentary, middle-aged women who were randomly assigned to either a supervised walking program or a control group. The walking program consisted of 12 weeks of supervised walking, 3 times per week, for 30 minutes per session. The control group consisted of 20 women who did not participate in the walking program. The subjects were assessed at baseline and at 12 weeks for physical and psychological health. The physical health assessment included measures of body mass index (BMI), waist circumference, and blood pressure. The psychological health assessment included measures of self-esteem, anxiety, and depression. The results of the study showed that the walking program had a significant positive effect on the physical and psychological health of the subjects. The walking program resulted in a significant decrease in BMI, waist circumference, and blood pressure. It also resulted in a significant increase in self-esteem and a significant decrease in anxiety and depression. The control group showed no significant changes in any of the measures. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program can improve the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.

Cervical spine

The cervical spine is the neck region of the spine. It is the most flexible part of the spine and is responsible for supporting the head. The cervical spine is composed of seven vertebrae, labeled C1 through C7. The C1 vertebra is the axis, which is the second vertebra from the top and is responsible for the head's rotation. The C2 vertebra is the axis, which is the second vertebra from the top and is responsible for the head's rotation. The C3 through C7 vertebrae are the cervical vertebrae, which are the vertebrae of the neck. The cervical spine is the most vulnerable part of the spine, as it is the most flexible and is responsible for supporting the head. The cervical spine is also the most common site for spinal cord injuries, as it is the most vulnerable part of the spine.
