Artificial Life V Christopher G. Langton, Katsunori Shimohara, 1997. In addition to presenting the latest work in the field, Artificial Life V includes a retrospective and prospective look at both artificial and natural life with the aim of refining the methods and approaches discovered so far into viable practical tools for the pursuit of science and engineering goals. May 16-18, 1996, Nara, Japan. Despite all the successes in computer engineering, adaptive computation, bottom-up AI, and robotics, Artificial Life must not become simply a one-way bridge borrowing biological principles to enhance our engineering efforts in the construction of life as it could be. We must ensure that we give back to biology in kind by developing tools and methods that will be of real value in the effort to understand life as it is. Artificial Life V marks a decade since Christopher Langton organized the first workshop on artificial life, a decade characterized by the exploration of new possibilities and techniques as researchers have sought to understand through synthetic experiments the organizing principles underlying the dynamics, usually the nonlinear dynamics, of living systems. In addition to presenting the latest work in the field, Artificial Life V includes a retrospective and prospective look at both artificial and natural life with the aim of refining the methods and approaches discovered so far into viable practical tools for the pursuit of science and engineering goals.
