Brain Drain Junaimah Binti Jauhar, Ahmad Bashawir Abdul Ghani, Rabiul Islam, 2016-06-15. This book focuses on skilled labour migration from Malaysia to Singapore. In this regard it examines a number of variables such as Better Perks and Benefits, Quality of Work Life, Ease of Immigration Procedures, International Exposure, Greater Job Availability, and Social Networks, and how they influence the decisions of Malaysian accounting professionals. In doing so, the book elaborates on how this phenomenon is an indirect result of globalization which is predominantly detrimental for developing countries such as Malaysia. The book also highlights the need for these experts in their home country as Malaysia is currently striving to improve its economy in order to achieve high income status by 2020.

Transitions from Education to Work Roslyn Cameron, Subas Dhakal, John Burgess, 2017-11-22. Labour markets are becoming more dynamic in response to pressures from globalisation, new technologies, and trade agreements, as well as cross-border migration, inter-generation differences, changing education imperatives, and employer expectations. By focusing on several Asia-Pacific countries, this book explores the differences in their workforces: ageing or abundant in labour but lacking in skilled employees. One similarity these countries share is the difficulty in attracting and retaining employees with the required skillset and capabilities, and these constraints can stymie national economic growth and long-term development. This book brings together national and international perspectives on employability challenges faced by selected countries in the Asia-Pacific region. While the region is forecast to enjoy high growth in the coming decade, a recurring challenge is addressing skill shortages and ensuring effective transition from training colleges and universities into employment. Consequently, the book focuses on the roles of multiple stakeholders: primarily governments, education providers, and employers, in more effectively addressing these key socio-economic challenges.

The Relevance of Academic Work in Comparative Perspective William K. Cummings, Ulrich Teichler, 2014-12-02. This book is the first of two volumes that look at the changed landscape of higher education and the academic profession. This volume focuses on academic work, examining the significant changes that have taken place in the backgrounds, specialisations, expectations, and work roles of academic staff. The academic profession is ageing and becoming increasingly insecure, more accountable, more internationalised, and less likely to be organised along disciplinary lines. The private sector is more prominent; expectations from society are different; and increasing professional roles are evolving, and there is a new devotion to knowledge. This leads to questions about the attractiveness of an academic career and the quest for greater relevance of research. This book discusses in detail the themes that are common in this changed arena, such as the context for change, the relation of teaching to research, research productivity, applied and commercial research, and the relevance of teaching and research.
