Reinventing Schools Charles M. Reigeluth,Jennifer R. Karnopp,2013-07-01 Since A Nation at Risk was published in 1983 there has been widespread recognition that public education is failing in the U S Numerous expensive reforms have been attempted to no avail and costs have increased dramatically Furthermore economic austerity requires educational systems to do more with less This book presents convincing evidence that paradigm change such as the change of lighting systems from the candle to the light bulb is the only way to significantly improve student learning and simultaneously lower costs The authors provide a thought provoking vision of the new paradigm including a new brain based pedagogy a new professional role for teachers a new central role for technology and even a new more empowered role for students and parents The authors also describe three examples a school a school district and a school model that have implemented many features of the new paradigm along with evidence of their effectiveness Finally this book describes ways we can transform our Industrial Age school systems to the new paradigm including ways our state and federal governments can help      Child Care Administration Judith W.
