A History of the Kennedy Space Center Kenneth Lipartito, Orville R Butler, 2007-08-12 This first comprehensive history of the Kennedy Space Center NASA's famous launch facility located at Cape Canaveral Florida reveals the vital but largely unknown work that takes place before the rocket is lit Though the famous Vehicle Assembly Building and launch pads dominate the flat Florida landscape at Cape Canaveral and attract 15 million people each year to its visitor complex few members of the public are privy to what goes on there beyond the final outcome of the flaring rocket as it lifts into space With unprecedented access to a wide variety of sources including the KSC archives other NASA centers the National Archives and individual and group interviews and collections Lipartito and Butler explore how the methods and technology for preparing testing and launching spacecraft have evolved over the last 45 years Their story includes the Mercury and Gemini missions the Apollo lunar program the Space Shuttle scientific missions and robotic spacecraft and the International Space Station as well as the tragic accidents of Challenger and Columbia Throughout the authors reveal the unique culture of the people who work at KSC and make Kennedy distinct from other parts of NASA As Lipartito and Butler show big NASA projects notably the Space Shuttle and the International Space Station had much to learn on the ground before they made it to space Long before a spacecraft started its ascent crucial work had been done work that combined the muscular and mundane with the high tech and applied the vital skills and knowledge of the men and women of KSC to the design of vehicles and missions The authors challenge notions that successful innovation was simply the result of good design alone and argue that with large technical systems real world experience actually made the difference between bold projects that failed and innovations that stayed within budget and produced consistent results The authors pay particular attention to operational knowledge developed by KSC the insights that came from using and operating complex technology This work makes it abundantly clear that the processes performed by ground operations are absolutely vital to success Model Research Alex Roland,1985

Remembering the space age: Proceedings of the 50th Anniversary Conference , Proceedings of October 2007 conference sponsored by the NASA History Division and the National Air and Space Museum to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Sputnik 1 launch in October 1957 and the dawn of the space age William H. Pickering Douglas James Mudgway,2007 From humble beginnings in a remote country town in New Zealand William Pickering became an icon for America's response to the Sputnik challenge alongside Wernher von Braun and James Van Allen

William H. Pickering Douglas J. Mudgway,2007 On the first day of February 1958 three men held aloft a model of Explorer 1 America's first Earth satellite for the press photographers That image of William Pickering Wernher von Braun and James Van Allen became an icon for America's response to the Sputnik challenge Von Braun and Van Allen were well known but who was Pickering From humble beginnings in a remote country town in New Zealand Pickering came to California in 1928 and quickly established himself as an outstanding student at the then new California Institute of Technology Caltech At Caltech Pickering worked under the famous physicist Robert Millikan on cosmic ray experiments at that time a relatively new field of physics In 1944 when Caltech's Jet Propulsion Laboratory JPL was developing rocket propulsion systems for the U S Army Pickering joined the work force as a technical manager He quickly established himself as an outstanding leader and 10 years later Caltech named him Director of JPL And then suddenly the world changed In October 1957 the Sputnik satellite startled the world with its spectacular demonstration of Soviet supremacy in space. Pickering led an intense JPL effort that joined with the von Braun and Van Allen teams to answer the Soviet challenge. Eighty three days later on 31 January 1958 America's first satellite roared into Earth orbit. A few months after that Pickering's decision to affiliate JPL with the newly formed National Aeronautics and Space Administration set the basis for his subsequent career and the future of NASA's ambitious program for the exploration of the solar system. In the early days of the space program failure followed failure as Pickering and his JPL team slowly ascended the learning curve. Eventually however NASA and JPL resolve paid off. First the Moon then Venus and then Mars yielded their scientific mysteries to JPL spacecraft of ever increasing sophistication. Within its first decade JPL built spacecraft sent back the first close up photographs of the lunar surface while others journeyed far beyond the Moon to examine Venus and return the first close up views of the surface of Mars. Later even more complex space missions made successful soft landings on the Moon and on Mars. Pickering's sudden death in March 2004 at the age of 93 was widely reported in the U.S. and overseas. As one NASA official eulogized him: His pioneering work formed the foundation upon which the current program for exploring our solar system was built. On this the 50th anniversary of the beginning of the Space Age it is proper to remind ourselves of the ordinary people who met the extraordinary challenge to make it happen.

Societal Impact of Spaceflight Steven J. Dick, 2007 Rockets and People Boris Evseevich Chertok, 2005 V 1 no special title v 2 Creating a rocket industry v 3 Hot days of the Cold War v 4 The moon race Rockets and People, Volume III, Hot Days of the Cold War, NASA Historical Data Book: NASA launch systems, space transportation, human spaceflight, and space science, 1979-1988 Jane Van Nimmen, 1988 Rocket States: Atomic Weaponry and the Cultural Imagination Fabienne Collignon, 2014-07-31

Rocket States crosses the disciplines of Cold War Studies, American Literature, American Studies and Cultural Studies. The particular attraction of this study lies in the combination of its range, close textual and visual analysis of the correlations between land and weaponry set firmly within its political and cultural contexts with its unique analytical approach. The book offers a synthesis between history, theories of technology, theories of space, popular culture, literary study and military science. It illuminates a variety of literary texts from key writers and thinkers such as Pynchon, Stephen King, Norman Mailer and Tom Wolfe while also invoking figures like Nikola Tesla, James Webb, Batman and Ronald Reagan. Organised topographically according to how missile technology manifests itself differently in particular locations, Rocket States's geographical targets are Colorado, Kansas, Cape Canaveral and New York, variously titled Excavation, Preservation, Evacuation and Transmission. It advances through these states roughly chronologically beginning in the late 1940s and early 1950s and coming to an end in the first part of the 21st century. Collignon's argument is concerned with identifying the recurring figures and fantasies of the Cold War: the dome or parabola as sheltering techno form, the fictions of total security, adapting to constantly changing targeting strategies, gadget love, closed, freezing worlds. As such, Rocket States analyses by what processes the Cold War is frequently literalised in its weapons installations and how these facilities in turn shape dreams of containment survival escape techno supremacy
