Florey,2016-04-29 American women s suffrage activists were fascinated with suffrage themed postcards They collected them exchanged them wrote about them used them as fundraisers and organized postcard day campaigns The cards they produced were imaginative and ideological advancing arguments for the enfranchisement of women and responding to antisuffrage broadsides Commercial publishers were also interested in suffrage cards recognizing their profit potential Their products though were reactive rather than proactive conveying stereotypes they assumed reflected public attitudes often negative towards the movement Cataloging approximately 700 examples this study examines the visual rhetoric of suffrage postcards in the context of the movement itself and as part of the general history of postcards Race and America's Immigrant

Press Robert M. Zecker,2011-06-30 Race was all over the immigrant newspaper week after week As early as the 1890s the papers of the largest Slovak fraternal societies covered lynchings in the South While somewhat sympathetic these articles nevertheless enabled immigrants to distance themselves from the blackness of victims and became part of a strategy of asserting newcomers tentative claims to whiteness Southern and eastern European immigrants began to think of themselves as white people They asserted their place in the U S and demanded the right to be regarded as Caucasians with all the privileges that accompanied this designation Circa 1900 eastern Europeans were slightly dismissed as Asiatic or African but there has been insufficient attention paid to the ways immigrants themselves began the process of race tutoring through their own institutions Immigrant newspapers offered a stunning array of lynching accounts poems and cartoons mocking blacks and paeans to America s imperial adventures in the Caribbean and Asia Immigrants themselves had a far greater role to play in their own racial identity formation than has so far been acknowledged The American Friend ,1917 South

Jersey Under the Stars Allison Hayes-Conroy,2005 This book examines how culture in South Jersey relates agriculture and landscape in the region Recognizing culture as the central force of social economic and ecological change it looks at how communities might push themselves towards cultures that are more reflective of agricultural an ecological rhythms The writing is best described as a reflection of the humanistic side of the social sciences in the tradition of works like Robert Bellah s Habits of the Heart The book is about re embedding the culture of Southern New Jersey in the agriculture and ecology of the region and stresses that doing so involves not only looking at the lives of families farmers and the work of environmentalists or local naturalist but also at the arts architecture history philosophy and religion The book s four main essays which focus on farms suburbs capitals and celebrations create an effective mode for the local application of the ever negotiated principles of ecological thought Together they offer direction as to how we might begin to embed our social systems in the natural systems that surround us This book is thoroughly illustrated Hawaii
