Abstract Background: The purpose of this study was to determine the prevalence of self-reported depression in a community sample of young adults. Methods: A cross-sectional survey of 1,000 young adults (ages 18–29) was conducted. The survey included a validated self-report measure of depression (the Center for Epidemiological Studies Depression Scale). Results: The prevalence of self-reported depression was 12.5%. The prevalence was significantly higher among females (15.5%) than males (7.5%). The prevalence was also significantly higher among those with a history of mental health problems (18.5%) than those without (10.5%). Conclusions: The prevalence of self-reported depression in this community sample of young adults was 12.5%. The prevalence was significantly higher among females and those with a history of mental health problems.
