The Internationalisation of Competition Rules Brendan J. Sweeney, 2009-09-10 The widespread move towards more market driven models of political economy combined with the expanding internationalisation of business and commerce has led to a series of proposals for global competition rules To date these proposals have been hotly contested A critical issue is whether some form of international rule making is required or whether soft law solutions are sufficient Competition rules may be required to combat the damage done by global cartels and to diffuse the tensions created when more than one nation seeks to regulate the same conduct Competition rules may also be required to protect the integrity of the world trading system International rule making however presents its own problems not the least of which is a concern with protecting national sovereignty

Handbook of International Economics P.B. Kenen, R.W. Jones, 1984-01-01 This Handbook adopts a traditional definition of the subject and focuses primarily on the explanation of international transactions in goods services and assets and on the main domestic effects of those transactions The first volume deals with the real side of international economics It is concerned with the explanation of trade and factor flows with their main effects on goods and factor prices on the allocation of resources and income distribution and on economic welfare and also with the effects on national policies designed explicitly to influence trade and factor flows In other words it deals chiefly with microeconomic issues and methods The second volume deals with the monetary side of the subject It is concerned with the balance of payments adjustment process under fixed exchange rates with exchange rate determination under flexible exchange rates and with the domestic ramifications of these phenomena Accordingly it deals mainly with macroeconomic issues although microeconomic methods are frequently utilized especially in work on expectations asset markets and exchange rate behavior For more information on the Handbooks in Economics series please see our home page on <http://www.elsevier.nl/locate/hes>
