individuals rather than their intentions or virtues Modernist and scientific approaches to determining the common good or good forms of governance have increasingly relied on techniques of generalisation and rationalisation This shift has meant that we no longer comprehend why and how people display a deep concern for everyday life values in their social practices People continue to enact these values and live by them while academics lack the vocabulary and methods to grasp them By reconstructing the history of ideas about everyday life values and by analysing the role of such values in contemporary care practices for patients with chronic disease in the Netherlands Reinventing the Good Life explores new ways to study the values of everyday life particularly in situations where the achievement of a clear cut or uniform good is unlikely The book presents a practice based epistemology and methodology for studying everyday care practices and supporting their goodness This analytical approach ultimately aims to generate ideas that will allow us to relate in more

The Individual in International Law Anne Peters, Tom Sparks, 2024-02-28 Shifts across the corpus of international law have brought the international legal system into a closer alignment with the interests of the individual This has led to a great and growing interest in the roles and status of individuals in international law and provided new impulses for debate The Individual in International Law is an exploration of what is described as the humanisation of international law. It examines how international law has accommodated individuals and how individual status, rights and obligations have become denser and more important in the international legal system. Split into two parts, the book analyses the humanisation of international law in different historical periods and from various theoretical perspectives. The first part focuses on the historical evolution of international law, exploring how the interests of individuals have shaped the development of the legal system from antiquity to 1945, providing a counterpoint to State-centric readings of international law's history. The second part contains theoretical debates, critical approaches and interdisciplinary investigations offering perspectives from ius positivism and ius naturalism, Marxism, TWAIL, feminism, global law, global constitutionalism, law and economics and legal anthropology. The book aims to stimulate further research on the humanisation and dehumanisation of new fields ranging from the ius contra bellum to climate law. The editors' introduction and conclusion frame the contributions, draw together their findings and address critiques comprehensively. Written by a team of acknowledged experts in their fields, this volume elucidates how the interests, rights, obligations and responsibilities of individuals have shaped international norms and regimes and suggests how a reoriented transformative humanism can inform and develop international law in an era of profound ideological, ecological and technical challenge. This is an open access title. It is made available under a Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivatives 4.0 International licence. It is available to read and download as a PDF version on the Oxford Academic platform.
