Holt Environmental Science Answer Feeding The World:

Can We Feed the World Without Destroying It? Eric Holt-Gimenez, 2019-02-25 Nearly a third of the world's population suffers from hunger or malnutrition. Feeding them and the projected population of 10 billion people by 2050 has become a high profile challenge for states, philanthropists and even the Fortune 500. This has unleashed a steady march of initiatives to double food production within a generation. But will doing so tax the resources of our planet beyond its capacity? In this sobering essay, scholar/practitioner Eric Holt-Gimenez argues that the ecological impact of doubling food production would be socially and environmentally catastrophic and would not feed the poor. We have the technology, resources and expertise to feed everyone. What is needed is a thorough transformation of the global food regime, one that increases equity while producing food and reversing agriculture's environmental impacts.

Food Wars Tim Lang, Michael Heasman, 2015-10-16 In the years since publication of the first edition of Food Wars, much has happened in the world of food policy. This new edition brings these developments fully up to date within the original analytical framework of competing paradigms or worldviews shaping the direction and decision making within food politics and policy. The key theme of the importance of integrating human and environmental health has become even more pressing. In the first edition, the authors set out and brought together the different strands of emerging agendas and competing narratives. The second edition retains the same core structure and includes updated examples, case studies and the new issues which show how these conflicting tendencies have played out in practice over recent years and what this tells us about the way the global food system is heading. Examples of key issues given increased attention include nutrition, including the global rise in obesity as well as chronic conditions, hunger and under nutrition, the environment, particularly the challenges of climate change, biodiversity loss, water stress and food security, food industry concentration and market power, volatility and uncertainty over food prices and policy responses, tensions over food democracy and citizenship, social and cultural aspects impacting food and nutrition policies.

In Defense of Farmers Jane Gibson, Sara Alexander, 2019-07-01 Industrial agriculture is generally characterized as either the salvation of a growing hungry global population or as socially and environmentally irresponsible. Despite elements of truth in this polarization, it fails to focus on the particular vulnerabilities and potentials of industrial agriculture. Both representations obscure individual farmers, their families, their communities and the risks they face from unpredictable local, national and global conditions, fluctuating and often volatile production costs and crop prices, extreme weather exacerbated by climate change complicated and changing farm policies new production technologies and practices water availability inflation and debt and rural community decline Yet the future of industrial agriculture depends fundamentally on farmers decisions In Defense of Farmers illuminates anew the critical role that farmers play in the future of agriculture and examines the social economic and environmental vulnerabilities of industrial agriculture as well as its adaptations and evolution Contextualizing the conversations about agriculture and rural societies within the disciplines of sociology geography economics and anthropology this volume addresses specific challenges farmers face in four countries Bolivia Brazil Canada and the United States By concentrating on countries with the most sophisticated production technologies capable of producing the largest quantities of grains soybeans and animal proteins in the world this volume focuses attention on the farmers whose labors decision making and risk taking throw into relief the implications and limitations of our global industrial food system The case studies here acknowledge the agency of farmers and offer ways forward in the direction of sustainable agriculture
