by Persephone

Many people think that robots are just machines that do what we tell them to do. But robots are actually much more than that. They are designed to do things that we can't do ourselves. For example, they can go into dangerous places and bring back information. They can also help us in many other ways, like in hospitals and in factories. So, when we think about robots, we should think about all the things they can do for us.

Robots are also designed to be very smart. They can learn from what we teach them and they can make decisions on their own. This means that they can do things that we can't do ourselves. For example, they can go into dangerous places and bring back information. They can also help us in many other ways, like in hospitals and in factories. So, when we think about robots, we should think about all the things they can do for us.

How to Design a Robot
