Project Strategy

One of the elements missing in much of the discussion around project management is a focus on the key early decisions that determine the project delivery strategy. Decisions on using Agile or Waterfall, pre-fabrication or on-site assembly don't change the required project deliverable but have a major influence on how the project is delivered and its likely success<sup>1</sup>.

One size does not fit-all. A good definition of strategy is: Strategy is the planning that people above you in the hierarchy do and tactics is the planning that people below you in the hierarchy do. This rule applies irrespective of where you are in the hierarchy. So a strategy to improve a city's bus system would be a tactic within a strategy to improve transport in a region. But this strategy to improve transport in a region would be a tactic within a government's national strategy to improve the wellbeing of its citizens.

Using this model, the project delivery strategy is defined early by the project manager and sponsor and it defines the tactical processes of budgeting and scheduling used to plan the work of the project.

Setting targets

Key performance criteria are needed to support the planning and quality assurance (QA) processes. These can include safety targets, staff development targets, environmental impact targets, etc. Meeting key performance criteria may have a fundamental impact on the way the project is done.

Key success criteria extend the performance criteria to clearly define what success looks like at the end of the project (and frequently their relative priority). They are the standards by which the project will be judged at the end to decide whether or not it has been successful in the eyes of the stakeholders:

- Project management success criteria: Related to the professional job of running the project, on-time, on-budget, quality, etc.
- Project deliverable success criteria: Related to the things delivered as a result of the project, did the deliverables 'do the job' the stakeholders expected effectively and efficiently?
- Project success criteria: Related to the business benefits and value proposition contained in the business case, was the organisation's investment in the project worthwhile.

Developing your project delivery strategy

Some of the key steps in designing a strategy for success include:

- Understanding and aligning with the organisations strategy<sup>2</sup>
- Familiarisation with the overall requirements of the project and its stakeholders<sup>3</sup>
- Determining the key elements of value and success for the project<sup>4</sup>
- Understanding the environment the project is operating within
- Determining the delivery methodology and agreeing this with the key stakeholders

British Planning Policy in Transition Mark Tewdwr-Jones, 2003-09-02 First Published in 1995 This book aims to consider the statutory planning policy system in Britain at the present time 1995 and predominantly takes as a starting point the development of the current processes in the period since 1989 90 The choice of time period for the study is deliberate and has been governed by two main issues First it coincides with the publication in 1989 of a government White Paper on the future of development plans This paper had immense implications for the statutory planning system and effectively precipitated a new era for the future framework of planning policy Secondly 1990 marks the end of Margaret Thatcher's period as Prime Minister and since we are discussing British planning policy within the context of changing political climates it is appropriate to assess the statutory planning process under John Major's administration The resultant essays which have been assembled therefore take the planning policy changes of the last five years as the focus of study and provide a context within which an in depth analysis of inter governmental planning relations may occur Strategic Planning in Higher Education James F Williams II, 2012-12-06 In this refreshing new volume strategic planning of budget management is looked at with a broad positive perspective Whether because of cuts in funding enrollment decline or academic cutbacks the necessity for strategic planning in a university comes out of unfavorable circumstances The chapters cover the planning process from start to finish with an emphasis on a final goal of bringing the library's status from one of an economic competitor to a deserving equal in the eyes of the academic community The development of programs and long term goals for various programs with realistic results in mind are stressed in this timely book Strategic planning can be an effective managing tool in the midst of uncertainty and constant change Cooperation collaboration and communication are all essentials for reaching this goal and the authors of the 13 chapters describe in detail past instances in which these were successful Readers will find that several major themes tie the diverse chapters of this book together such as becoming successful in applying for limited institutional resources giving the library's goals a more prominent position among the members of the campus administration and using the planning exercise to help the members of the academic community better understand the administrative decision making process Written by college and university presidents campus planners and librarians this book clearly outlines the methods and benefits of strategic planning and provides an encouraging picture of what can be achieved when the process is used Resources in Education, 2001 Final Report of the Committee on a Strategic Plan for U.S. Burning Plasma Research National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Board on Physics and Astronomy, Committee on a Strategic Plan for U.S. Burning Plasma Research, 2019-07-01 Fusion offers the prospect of virtually unlimited energy The United States and many nations around the world have made enormous progress toward achieving fusion energy With ITER scheduled to go online within a decade and demonstrate controlled fusion ten years later now is the right time for the United States to develop plans to benefit from its investment in burning plasma research and take steps to develop fusion electricity for the nation's future energy needs. At the request of the Department of Energy, the National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine organized a committee to develop a strategic plan for U.S. fusion research. The final report's two main recommendations are: 1. The United States should remain an ITER partner as the most cost-effective way to gain experience with a burning plasma at the scale of a power plant. 2. The United States should start a national program of accompanying research and technology leading to the construction of a compact pilot plant that produces electricity from fusion at the lowest possible capital cost.
