Technologies and Approaches to Reducing the Fuel Consumption of Medium- and Heavy-Duty Vehicles National Research Council,Transportation Research Board,Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences,Board on Energy and Environmental Systems,Committee to Assess Fuel Economy Technologies for Medium- and Heavy-Duty Vehicles,2010-08-30 Technologies and Approaches to Reducing the Fuel Consumption of Medium and Heavy Duty Vehicles evaluates various technologies and methods that could improve the fuel economy of medium and heavy duty vehicles such as tractor trailers transit buses and work trucks The book also recommends approaches that federal agencies could use to regulate these vehicles fuel consumption Currently there are no fuel consumption standards for such vehicles which account for about 26 percent of the transportation fuel used in the U S The miles per gallon measure used to regulate the fuel economy of passenger cars is not appropriate for medium and heavy duty vehicles which are designed above all to carry loads efficiently Instead any regulation of medium and heavy duty vehicles should use a metric that reflects the efficiency with which a vehicle moves goods or passengers such as gallons per ton mile a unit that reflects the amount of fuel a vehicle would use to carry a ton of goods one mile This is called load specific fuel consumption LSFC The book estimates the improvements that various technologies could achieve over the next decade in seven vehicle types For example using advanced diesel engines in tractor trailers could lower their fuel consumption by up to 20 percent by 2020 and improved aerodynamics could yield an 11 percent reduction Hybrid powertrains could lower the fuel consumption of vehicles that stop frequently such as garbage trucks and transit buses by as much 35 percent in the same time frame

Vehicles National Research Council, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Board on Energy and Environmental

Systems, Committee on the Assessment of Technologies for Improving Fuel Economy of Light-Duty Vehicles, Phase 2, 2015-09-28

The light duty vehicle fleet is expected to undergo substantial technological changes over the next several decades. New powertrain designs, alternative fuels, advanced materials, and significant changes to the vehicle body are being driven by increasingly stringent fuel economy and greenhouse gas emission standards. By the end of the next decade, cars and light duty trucks will be more fuel efficient, weigh less, emit less air pollutants, have more safety features, and will be more expensive to purchase relative to current vehicles. Though the gasoline powered spark ignition engine will continue to be the dominant powertrain configuration even through 2030, such vehicles will be equipped with advanced technologies, materials, electronics, and controls, and aerodynamics. And by 2030, the deployment of alternative methods to propel and fuel vehicles and alternative modes of transportation, including autonomous vehicles, will be well underway. What are these new technologies, how will they work, and will some technologies be more effective than others? Written to inform The United States Department of Transportation's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) and Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Corporate Average Fuel Economy (CAFE) and greenhouse gas (GHG) emission standards, this new report from the National Research Council is a technical evaluation of costs, benefits, and implementation issues of fuel reduction technologies for next generation light duty vehicles. Cost Effectiveness and Deployment of Fuel Economy Technologies for Light Duty Vehicles estimates the cost, potential efficiency improvements, and barriers to commercial deployment of technologies that might be employed from 2020 to 2030. This report describes these promising technologies and makes recommendations for their inclusion on the list of technologies applicable for the 2017-2025 CAFE standards.
