It was a lesson in values that we carried with us during the Vietnam War and in our lives since. When I was interviewed for a position at the National Institute of Standards and Technology as an engineering manager, I was asked to give a brief account of my life and my philosophy. We had several short and intense sessions to discuss my background and my philosophy. There is and with it some support. President of the National Labor Relations Board, William H. Douglas, was particularly helpful in this regard. He was able to get the bill passed by the Senate in 1946. The bill was signed into law by President Truman on July 1, 1946.
