

Mathematical Representation of the relationship between variables

Consider a simple example: a car moving with a constant speed. The distance traveled by the car is directly proportional to the time taken. This relationship can be represented by a linear equation: $d = vt$, where d is the distance, v is the speed, and t is the time. The graph of this equation is a straight line passing through the origin. The slope of the line represents the speed of the car. This is a simple example of a linear relationship. In more complex situations, the relationship between variables may be non-linear, and the graph may be a curve. The mathematical representation of such relationships is more complex, but the principle remains the same: to find a function that describes the relationship between the variables.
