Rethinking Investment Incentives Ana Teresa Tavares-Lehmann, Perrine Toledano, Lise Johnson, Lisa Sachs, 2016-07-12 Governments often use direct subsidies or tax credits to encourage investment and promote economic growth and other development objectives Properly designed and implemented these incentives can advance a wide range of policy objectives increasing employment promoting sustainability and reducing inequality Yet since design and implementation are complicated incentives have been associated with rent seeking and wasteful public spending This collection illustrates the different types and uses of these initiatives worldwide and examines the institutional steps that extend their value By combining economic analysis with development impacts regulatory issues and policy options these essays show not only how to increase the mobility of capital so that cities states nations and regions can better attract direct and retain investments but also how to craft policy and compromise to ensure incentives endure

Trump, Trade, and the End of Globalization David Steven Jacoby, 2018-06-15 Provides a roadmap for mature industrialized countries to contribute to and benefit from global trade on new terms Global trade is heading toward chaos Globalization has in part been a zero sum game over the last 20 years as China's middle and upper classes have grown sharply while Western economies have stagnated Wealthy countries most notably the United States and the United Kingdom are now on the brink of abandoning free trade as it includes both the principles and the theories behind it because their economies cannot compete with those of China and some developing countries Prevailing protectionist attitudes and policies are based on short term thinking and will disappoint future generations According to author David S Jacoby a new multilateralism can provide a way out of this impending disaster by preserving innovation and growth while also curbing the impact of countries that manipulate currency disparage the environment and violate human rights Jacoby clearly explains how industrialized nations can compete on a basis of differentiated technology and innovation while letting developing countries compete on a basis of manufacturing components and materials and makes a strong case for why the West should recommit to global trade
