Mayan Irrigation Techniques

Directions: Read the paragraphs below and study the illustrations carefully. Then answer the questions that follow.

The Mayan Empire began in central Mexico around 400. As their population grew, the Mayans needed to increase their food supply. As a result, innovative Mayan farmers developed different farming techniques to overcome a variety of geographic obstacles.

The first illustration below shows how the Mayans coped with a mountainous environment. They built terraces—stretchers of narrow but level ground—into the sloping sides of mountains. As earthen mounds of stones prevented topsoil from being washed downhill, and a straight channel irrigated the crops on each level.

In the wet lowlands, runoff from the mountains often flooded the Mayans' fields and destroyed their crops. The second illustration shows how they overcame this flooding. They built up the fields to allow excess water to drain off into channels. They then used these irrigation channels to control when the water went and how much water they wanted to use for irrigation. They often diverted excess water to areas that were too far from the mountains to receive runoff. The Mayans then scooped soil from the banks and bottoms of these channels and spread it across the dry ground to create farmland.

These techniques allowed the Mayans to farm in almost any kind of land. As a result, they lived on a rich diet of maize, beans, avocados, melons, and squash.
