Teaching Australian Literature Brenton Doecke, Larissa McLean Davies, Philip Mead, 2011 Summary What role should Australian literature play in the school curriculum What principles should guide our selection of Australian texts To what extent should concepts of the nation and a national identity frame the study of Australian writing What do we imagine Australian literature to be How do English teachers go about engaging their students in reading Australian texts This volume brings together teachers teacher educators creative writers and literary scholars in a joint inquiry that takes a fresh look at what it means to teach Australian literature The immediate occasion for the publication of these essays is the implementation of The Australian Curriculum English which several contributors subject to critical scrutiny In doing so they question the way that literature teaching is currently being constructed by standards based reforms not only in Australia but elsewhere

Discipline and Learn Megan Watkins, 2012-03-24

Discipline and Learn Bodies Pedagogy and Writing explores how discipline is typically construed as a form of subjection in contemporary educational thought and in critical and cultural theory more broadly It provides a critique of this emphasis on the repressive aspects of discipline highlighting its enabling potential and role in the development of dispositions to learning The book engages with the work of a range of theorists Foucault Bourdieu Merleau Ponty Mauss and Spinoza and considers their usefulness in theorizing embodiment and learning in the teaching of writing in the early years of school Emphasis however is placed on the work of Bourdieu and his notion of habitus melding theory and practice in an ethnography of contemporary classrooms This text is invaluable reading for students and academics across the social sciences and humanities interested in questions of embodiment affect and their relation to learning This is the most thought provoking book to be published on pedagogy in a long long time Conceptually elegant and empirically rich it undercuts conventional wisdom and potentially rearranges how we think about teaching learning and writing It argues that students bodies not just their minds matter in learning explaining how in practice the desire to learn is a mindful bodily disposition And it shows how through an enabling form of discipline teachers can produce a scholarly habitus in all students including the educationally disadvantaged and defiant Jane Kenway Professor of Education Monash University Discipline and Learn Bodies Pedagogy and Writing an excellent book which makes an important contribution to our understanding of both pedagogy and the body and which is sure to spark debate in both fields It is careful and judicious in its approach but still manages to be provocative and original Nick Crossley Professor of Sociology University of Manchester

Changing Schools in an Era of Globalization John Chi-Kin Lee, Brian J.

Caldwell, 2012-04-27 Much has been written about globalization and the challenge of preparing young people for the new world of work and life in times of complexity and continuous change. However, few works have examined how globalization has and will continue to shape education in the East. This volume discusses education within the context of globalization and examines what is occurring in schools and systems of education in the People's Republic of China, Hong Kong, Chinese Taipei, Singapore, and Australia. Closer examination of recent developments and current trends reveals the same turbulence and a range of common issues in areas such as assessment, curriculum, leadership, management of change, pedagogy, policy, professional capacity, and technology. This volume demonstrates the commonalities and differences and offers tremendous insight into the way things are done in places where student achievement is high, but there is also a sense of urgency in continuing an agenda of change.
