Stewart Sell, 2003-10-22 The power of stem cells for tissue development regeneration and renewal has been well known by embryologists and developmental biologists for many years Those presently active in research in the stem cell field owe much to previous work by embryologists and cancer researchers for their insights into what stem cells can do In the last 4 5 years the rapid expansion of the concept of adult tissue stem cells as pluripotent progenitors for various tissues has led to an even greater appreciation of the power of stem cells The demonstration that both embryonic and adult tissue stem cells have the ability to produce progenitor cells for tissue renewal has opened vast possibilities for treatment of congenital deficiency diseases as well as for regeneration of damaged tissues Older concepts of determination leading to loss of potential during differentiation of adult tissues are being replaced by newer ideas that cells with multiple potential exist in different forms in various adult organs and that cells thought to be restricted to differentiation to one cell type may be able to transdifferentiate into other tissue cell types Thus the concept of embryonic rests in adult tissues hypothesized to be the cellular origin of cancer by Durante and Conheim in the 1870s now can be expanded to include survival of pluripotential embryonic like stem cells in adult tissues

The Archaeologist's Laboratory Edward B. Banning, 2020-07-27 This second edition of the classic textbook The Archaeologist's Laboratory is a substantially revised work that offers updated information on the archaeological work that follows fieldwork such as the processing and analysis of artifacts and other evidence An overarching theme of this edition is the quality and validity of archaeological arguments and the data we use to support them The book introduces many of the laboratory activities that archaeologists carry out and the ways we can present research results including graphs and artifact illustrations Part I introduces general topics concerning measurement error data quality research design typology probability and databases It also includes data presentation basic artifact conservation and laboratory safety Part II offers brief surveys of the analysis of lithics and ground stone pottery metal artifacts bone and shell artifacts animal and plant remains and sediments as well as dating by stratigraphy seriation and chronometric methods It concludes with a chapter on archaeological illustration and publication A new feature of the book is illustration of concepts through case studies from around the world and from the Palaeolithic to historical archaeology The text is appropriate for senior undergraduate students and will also serve as a useful reference for graduate students and professional archaeologists
