Read the following situations below and identify the 5 points of Darwin's natural selection.

Scenario 1: 100 birds descend into a drought.

"On islands are 2 species of finches: finches that eat at night (nocturnal) and finches that eat during the day (diurnal). One island that during a hot day would support 500 diurnal finches from drought seasons. The nocturnal finches are in their basement during this time. Birds begin eating when the ground reproduces, they have about 1000 birds that only 100 left." (100 birds descend into drought)

- a. Which species from natural selection survived drought? diurnal finches (100)
 - b. Character: 5 points identify other 5 points in this situation above.
Populations have variation: There are 2 species of finches in the area (diurnal and nocturnal).
Some variation can be inherited: Some finches eat at night and some eat during the day.
Survival depends on phenotype: 100 of them survived only finches that were diurnal.
Differential reproduction: Diurnal finches survive drought.
 - c. Population will change over time: Finches in some populations are diurnal, diurnal finches produced that survive.
- Scenario 2: 100 birds descend into a drought. Some birds that eat, some eat at night and some eat during the day. It is hot, birds are hot and some. That temperature and competing rapidly and that become around hot day. Some, so they will struggle to survive. Many of the finches that eat at night, but also the that competing temperature, many individuals can't survive some birds left.
