

9 tips for writing a school policy

School policies and procedures demonstrate your commitment with statutory requirements. Use Clifton's tips to guide you in creating and revising a policy.

1. Consult your board

Develop a policy that meets the needs of all stakeholders, including staff, students, parents, and the community. Consult with your board of directors for guidance and support.

2. Know the legal requirements

Check with your local education agency (LEA) for any specific requirements or standards that may apply to your policy.

3. Research the issue

Conduct a thorough research of the issue, including current best practices, research, and legal requirements. Consult with experts in the field for guidance.

4. Define the goal

Set a clear, measurable goal for the policy, and define the scope of the policy. Consider the impact of the policy on the school and the community.

5. Engage the staff in developing the policy

Involve staff in the development of the policy, as they are the ones who will be responsible for implementing it. Consider the input of all staff members, including teachers, administrators, and support staff.

Be consistently and consistently using the same language and terminology throughout the policy. Avoid using jargon or technical terms that may be confusing to the reader.

6. Share the policy right

Share the policy with all stakeholders, including staff, students, parents, and the community. Consider the impact of the policy on the school and the community.

7. Review the policy for the year

Review the policy annually to ensure it remains current and relevant. Consider the impact of the policy on the school and the community.

8. Continually improve

Continually improve the policy by seeking feedback from all stakeholders and making necessary revisions. Consider the impact of the policy on the school and the community.
