Marlow, Sabine Siekmann, 2013-06-13 Educators scholars and community activists recognize that immersion education is a key means to restoring Indigenous and other heritage languages But language maintenance and revitalization involve many complex issues foremost may be the lack of local professional development opportunities for potential language teachers In Alaska the Second Language Acquisition Teacher Education SLATE project was designed to enable Indigenous communities and schools to improve the quality of native language and English language instruction and assessment by focusing on the elimination of barriers that have historically hindered degree completion for Indigenous and rural teachers The Guided Research Collaborative GRC model was employed to support the development of communities of practice through near peer mentoring and mutual scaffolding Through this important new model teachers of both the heritage language in this case Central Yup'ik and English were able to situate their professional development into a larger global context based on current notions of multilingualism In Communities of Practice contributors show how the SLATE program was developed and implemented providing an important model for improving second language instruction and assessment Through an in depth analysis of the program contributors show how this project can be successfully adapted in other communities via its commitment to local control in language programming and a model based on community driven research Communities of Practice demonstrates how an initial cohort of Yup'ik and English language teachers collaborated to negotiate and ultimately completed the SLATE program In so doing these educators enhanced the program and their own effectiveness as teachers through a greater understanding of language learning It is these understandings that will ultimately allow heritage and English language teachers to work together to foster their students success in any language

Charade David Marcus,2021-06-08 From the beginning of the Coronavirus crisis in March of 2020 the media and politicians engaged in myths half truths and even flat out lies to bring about obedience from the populace Charade tackles these myths one by one laying bare the brazen power grab by governors experts and corporations all seeking to bend the American people to their will David Marcus combines his reporting on the Coronavirus crisis with a cultural deep dive into how those in power used the emergency to consolidate power and change the very concept of American freedoms Government media advertisers and scientists all sought to set an agenda to strip Americans of their rights From church attendance to running a business right down to how many people can be in a private home few rights were left wholly unchecked What s worse is that any challenge to the holy laws of lockdowns were criticized and censored as dangerous and deadly speech The question that remains is whether Americans will ever allow this to happen again Now the lies of 2020 can be revealed No Americans weren t all in it together It was not as simple as trust the science Donald Trump was not a villain Andrew Cuomo was not a hero and lockdowns did vastly more harm than good As America awakens from the nightmare of the Coronavirus crisis it must learn lessons from it but the first step is an honest accounting of all the rank dishonesty
