Dijkstra,2020-01-15 The major histocompatibility complex MHC is a highly polymorphic and diverse multigene locus in all jawed vertebrate species that has an integral role in adaptive innate immune systems transplantation and infectious and autoimmune diseases The MHC supra locus in mammalian vertebrates is usually partitioned into three distinct regions known as classes I II and III which to varying extents can be found conserved in nonmammalian jawed vertebrates such as bony fish amphibians and bird lineages The MHC gene region is characterized particularly by the expression of class I and class II glycoproteins that bind peptides derived from intracellular or extracellular antigens to circulating T cells While this expressed antigenic specificity remains the predominant interest with respect to MHC function and polymorphism in a population a broader concept has emerged that examines the MHC as a multifunctional polymorphic controller that facilitates and regulates genome diversity with a much greater array of functions and effects than just MHC restricted antigen recognition This volume of 19 reprints presented by various experts and collected from the Special Issue of Cells on MHC in Health and Disease covers a broad range of topics on the genomic diversity of the MHC regulatory system in various vertebrate species including MHC class I II and III genes innate and adaptive immunity neurology transplantation haplotypes infectious and autoimmune diseases fecundity conservation allelic lineages and evolution Taken together these articles demonstrate the immense complexity and diversity of the MHC structure and function within and between different vertebrate species
