Bin Laden

Justice catches up with 9-11 mastermind after 10 years

It was Euripides, the ancient Greek playwright, who wrote, "The will of the Gods grind slow but they grind exceedingly fine."

The "wills of the Gods," in the person of a U.S. Navy Seal's special operations team, arrived at the doorstep of Osama bin Laden after a 10-year search on Sunday. And they "ground" exceedingly fine.

By Monday morning the talking heads on cable networks are hashing over whether Bin Laden's death would actually have any effect on the War on Terrorism or was more symbolic. As usual, they missed the point.

Which is a simple one. It's called justice.

Bin Laden was not a soldier, not a combatant, not even a general commanding an army although he fancied himself all of those, to be sure.

He was simply a criminal, although one on a scale nobody could have imagined prior to the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001.

Most societies, in their own ways, have concepts of justice, that criminals get punished for their crimes and that justice requires more serious punishments for more serious crimes.

Far from being a promoter of a nation, an idea, or even a political movement, Bin Laden had more in common with Timothy McVeigh than with anyone else.

McVeigh blew up babies in their cribs, Bin Laden blew up people having coffee and cinnamon rolls while talking about the Mets' game. Make no mistake about it, both intended the same thing, leaving the innocent politics aside.

Justice was demanded. Justice got there Sunday.

In the days after 9-11, a respected journalistic organization posed the question: "If you got the dream interview, could you ask Osama one question, what would it be?"

The question answered in, dealing with racism, Christianity, philosophy. Finally one person who placed being an American above being a journalist quipped:

"I only want to know one thing from Osama Bin Laden. What are your coordinates?"

Sunday we found out. And so did he. —M.R.

Larry made it from our kitchen sink to the woods

Neighbor Greener saw his neighbor come hanging on his door at 2:30 a.m., but it didn't bother him because he was still up playing his bagpipes.

Grandson Eaten, 10, Will, 8, and Angie, 6, were playing in the drive-way at over 300 mph. They were spotted a turtle (terrapin?) moving ever so slowly onto the drive from the grass, and the boys having come out of turtle habitat in the woods.

Will started to do just that, circled it a couple of times, and moved on. "That's a turtle! What if it's a snapping turtle?"

Will said, "I picked it up by its shell to prove my point. I sat it on the lawn where the boys spent some time admiring it, and then went back to their scooter, bicycle and skateboard course on our long, sloping drive.

Next day, the trio discovered that same terrapin (I think it was the same; they do tend to look alike) on our front sidewalk, having made it half-way across our lawn.

By this time Eaten and Will were not bashful about picking up. When I came in from the office, Will informed me that they had released the turtle and put it in the kitchen sink in rice-cool water.

Wied Hardware was Cameron landmark

This column continues a series on Cameron historical buildings.

Albert Matucha opened a successful hardware store in Cameron's Dutchess in 1918. The building was owned by Frank Mondrik.

During Matucha's operation of the store the building was damaged by a fire in May, 1920.

Matucha required the damaged area using remains of an old dance hall which was divided into two parts and dragged by men to Burn Street.

He continued to run the store until his death in 1948. "Bubba" Wied became the store's owner.

Wied purchased the building from the Mondrik family and operated it until 1968. The store was known for its stock of hardware, and it was a landmark in the community.

Reynolds was well-known for work which can still be found around the countryside.

Mrs. Wied continued to run the store until 1968. She owned the store today, and while it is operated by appointment or on special occasions, it is a full of antiques and a good many hardware items dating back to the mid 1900s.

It is an impressive work of art, and it is a landmark in the community.

outdoors. At that time, the trio decided it was time to watch Cartoon Network or to play computer games, so I figured the turtle would soon be a distant memory.

Eaten and Will left that afternoon with parents Ken and Christine to go to the beach.

Next morning Noelle brought Angie to the house and a little bit later, Angie's mother, Angie, came to the front sidewalk looking in the bushes.

"What's that down, Angie?" I asked.

"Looking on Larry to come out," he said.

"Do you see him?" I asked.

"Nope. He's probably in these bushes."

Angie gave it a good half hour and then came to the house. I thought he'd lived up the Cartoon Network again, and he had.
