from the common assumption that proximal demonstratives refer to entities or places close to the speaker while non proximal demonstratives refer to entities or places far from the speaker Having analyzed a representative sampling consisting of a German text and a Chinese text the author argues that both German and Chinese proximal demonstratives can signal the meaning of HIGH DEIXIS in a system of DEIXIS in the Columbia School of linguistics framework whereas their non proximal demonstratives can signal the meaning of LOW DEIXIS In addition Chinese demonstratives can be used under more circumstances than German demonstratives due to the lack of articles in Chinese The author also argues that Cognitive Linguistic analysis is more helpful for new language learners whereas the Columbia School of linguistics may be better suited to advanced learners who wish to know more about the intrinsic differences between words with similar meanings and uses This book aims to help German learners better understand the German reference system Readers with a Chinese language background will definitely benefit more from the book as well as Chinese learners with a German language background For pure linguistic enthusiasts and multi linguals the book offers an extensive introduction to the Columbia School of linguistics and can open a new horizon for learning a new language comparatively

Remains of the Everyday Joshua Goldstein,2020-12-22 Remains of the Everyday traces the changing material culture and industrial ecology of China through the lens of recycling Over the last century waste recovery and secondhand goods markets have been integral to Beijing s economic functioning and cultural identity and acts of recycling have figured centrally in the ideological imagination of modernity and citizenship On the one hand the Chinese state has repeatedly promoted acts of voluntary recycling as exemplary of conscientious citizenship On the other informal recycling networks from the night soil carriers of the Republican era to the collectors of plastic and cardboard in Beijing s neighborhoods today have been represented as undisciplined polluting and technologically primitive due to the municipal government s failure to control them The result Joshua Goldstein argues is the repeatedly re inscribed exclusion of waste workers from formations of modern urban citizenship as well as the intrinsic liminality of recycling itself as an economic process
